Two Day: Mental Health First Aid

Course Introduction

Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) is a nationally accredited mental health training course that will teach you and your employees how to identify, and understand the various components of mental health and wellbeing.

It raises self-awareness of mental health and make you and your employees more aware of self needs and more able to help others. Specifically, you will learn a range of mental health conditions, how statistically these affect various population cohorts, how to identify the warning signs to illness, and how to approach and support people in potential and actual crisis.

Course Outcomes

By the end of the INSET, delegates will have:

- Research based evidence of a range of mental health conditions and causes such as stress, panic attacks, psychosis, depression, alcohol and drug misuse, eating disorders, body dysmorphia, suicide, and various personality syndrome conditions
- Reduced stigma around a range of mental health conditions
- Boosts knowledge and applied learning of mental health and wellbeing
- Use of ALGEE diagnostics to tackle mental health situations
- How to raise awareness in others of mental health challenges
- More knowledgeable work force that support each other and increases productivity
- Nationally certified in mental health and wellbeing (ideal for Mental Health Leads)
- Course Workbook, Mental Health Handbook, Certificate and ALGEE Diagnostic Tool

"Ross's approach to mental health and wellbeing is a refreshing change. He is up to date with key statistics, understands his audience needs, and delivers in a very easy going, yet informative manner."
